Commentary

During the fourth quarter 2022, the Axiom US Small Cap Equity Strategy ("Strategy") underperformed the Russell 2000 Growth Index ("Index") net of fees. The Strategy has outperformed the Index on a net of fees basis over 3-year, 5-year, 10-year, and since inception periods.

Financial markets were volatile during Q422 as the shifting outlook for inflation and central bank policy continued. The Russell 2000 Growth Index rebounded sharply from September 2022 lows, as the market grew optimistic that peak inflation would encourage the Federal Reserve to pivot to a slower pace of interest rate hikes. Third quarter US GDP, labor market data, and reported corporate earnings were solid and generally well received. In December, the Federal Reserve raised interest rates and signaled its intention to remain vigilant in its efforts to combat inflation. A continued hawkish Fed, geopolitical uncertainties-namely in Ukraine and China, and concerns over an anticipated economic and corporate earnings slowdown in 2023 drove markets lower to end the year. During the quarter, US Real GDP forecasts for 2023 were revised lower from +0.8% to +0.3%, while 2024 US Real GDP forecasts were also revised lower from +1.6% to +1.3%. Reflecting these concerns, the FY2022 benchmark total return of -26.4% was the 3rd worst calendar year performance for the Russell 2000 Growth Index since inception.

From a style perspective, small cap value outperformed growth in Q422, and value has outperformed growth in 8 of the last 9 quarters, providing a notable headwind to active small cap growth investing. From a sector perspective, there was a 20% performance dispersion among Index sectors again this quarter. Energy (+17.4%), consumer staples (+11.2%), real estate (+8.7%), materials (+7.9%), industrials (+7.4%), consumer discretionary (+5.2%) and information technology (+4.9%) relatively outperformed the benchmark return of 4.1%, while utilities (+1.0%), financials (-0.2%), communication services (-0.8%) and health care (-3.2%) notably underperformed the Index on a relative basis.

The best performing sector for the Strategy on a relative basis during the fourth quarter was health care, led by Halozyme Therapeutics, a royalty-bearing biotechnology company that enables subcutaneous drug delivery and Ensign Group, one of the largest U.S. operators of skilled nursing facilities. Energy was also a source of relative outperformance driven by energy equipment companies ProFrac, one of the largest U.S. pressure pumpers, and Cactus, a supplier of wellhead and pressure control equipment. Consumer Discretionary was another area of relative outperformance driven by outperformance from Wyndham, a global hotel franchiser and Fox Factory, a provider of premium suspension products for power vehicles and specialty sports.

From an individual stock perspective, the best relative contributors for the quarter were Halozyme Therapeutics, ProFrac, and Ensign Group. The largest detractors on a relative basis were diagnostic medical imaging agent manufacturer Lantheus Holdings, global manufacturer of engineered equipment servicing energy and industrial markets Chart Industries, and managed care services firm Evolent Health. These companies were negatively impacted during the quarter by elevated growth expectations, an uncertain macroeconomic outlook in 2023, and related challenges affecting customer growth.

Following a year of volatile markets in 2022, valuations for small caps are more attractive with the Russell 2000 Growth Index trading at a -15% PE discount to historic levels and remains materially below its 2020 peak. Encouragingly, consensus 2023 earnings growth expectations for small cap companies exceeds large cap companies, while both small cap growth and small cap value companies are expected to see growth in 2023. The US Small Cap Strategy trades at an attractive -30% discount to historic PE valuation, while expected earnings growth remains higher than the benchmark with materially better profitability and reasonable balance sheet leverage.

Axiom continues to invest in dynamic growth stocks delivering superior growth and profitability. Market volatility has driven small cap valuations to historically attractive levels on an absolute and relative basis versus large caps. Earnings expectations remain encouraging for the Strategy, and we continue to carefully monitor company fundamentals into 2023. COVID trends, the pace of economic growth, fiscal/ monetary policy actions, and geopolitical risks will continue to result in periods of elevated volatility and uncertainty in equity markets. While we continue to closely monitor these events, our focus remains on fundamental, bottom-up investing in innovative, higher quality small-cap companies that are visibly and dynamically growing their revenues and earnings faster than prevailing economic growth rates. Well-capitalized, profitable, and reasonably valued growth companies that are executing in the current environment remain a differentiated and compelling area of investment.

The information presented is not definitive investment advice, should not be relied on as such, and should not be viewed as a recommendation by Axiom. The securities presented are not representative of all of the securities purchased, sold or held for advisory clients, and it should not be assumed that investment in the securities identified was or will be profitable.
